

The CONDOR STREET SITE captures the historic context and ongoing developments of Eversource's Condor Street Property. This "site" is both digital, and physical.

By making this central digital site for all aspects of The Condor Street Site's cultural landscape, the hope is to inform the public of this ongoing environmental injustice and to help persuade the EFSB to relocate the substation to a Massport-owned site

BUT HOW DO YOU DO THAT?

DOCUMENT the facts. This project is sited within a flood plane putting all nearby properties and people at an unfair risk in East Boston, a neighborhood already overburdened with regional and industrial infrastructure.

EDUCATE visitors about the history of East Boston's unjust infrastructure and Eversource's previous malpractices so that a fair future is ensured for the neighborhood. Concessions must be made for violations in the past.

UNDERSTAND East Boston as a diverse neighborhood that is largely known by for hosting Logan Airport and all of its fuel. To justify any new project needs to require inclusive design processes that acknowledge all of the different stakeholders and their varied desires for the best outcome possible.

THE CONDOR
STREET
SITE

Rebecca Kozak, Resident & Community Organizer

Wants: environmental justice in my neighborhood

So that she can: safely continue to enjoy public space, feel justice for previous wrongs

Kim Janey, Boston Mayor

Wants: to provide executive leadership, set priorities and goals for the City

So that she can: oversee a time of success for those who reside in Boston

Kim Janey, Boston Mayor

Wants: to provide executive leadership, set priorities and goals for the City

So that she can: oversee a time of success for those who reside in Boston

Marita Manrique, Resident

Wants: Eversource to not build the substation

So that she can: feel like her voice has been heard and her needs are not ignored

Sean Lydon, City Deputy of Inspectional Services

Wants: to enforce building, housing, health, sanitation, and safety regulations

So that he can: protect and improve the quality of life for all Boston residents

Lydia Edwards, East Boston's City Councilor

Wants: to represent my District's desires to the best of my ability to City Hall

So that she can: ensure constituents within her districts feel taken care of

Adrian Madaro, Mass State Representative

Wants: to expand quality of public space, equity among East Boston's diverse population

So that he can: provide equal resources and opportunities to East Boston residents